MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES.

The Report of the Training School for Nurses for the year 1906 is herewith submitted:

There are two changes to record this year: That already made in regard to the obstetrical training of the pupils, and the future plan of receiving the McLean Hospital nurses. When our agreement with the Sloane Maternity Hospital ended in June, it left the obstetrical training of 12 pupils a year to be provided for; the New York Lying-In Hospital offered to receive 8 of the pupils, and arrangements were made with the Boston Lying-In Hospital to receive the other 2 for a six months' course of training. Up to this time the graduates of the McLean Hospital Training School have been given a thirteen months' course in general medical and surgical nursing. A longer and fuller course has now been arranged in the McLean Hospital, and during the second year of training the pupils will be on duty in the wards of this hospital for eight months.

The letters of inquiry for the year were 743. Twenty-two graduates of other hospitals applied for a post-graduate course. Of the 69 probationers admitted, 57 were accepted, and became pupils of the school. Fifteen nurses completed the three years' course of training, and sixteen McLean Hospital graduates completed the thirteen months' course. Five graduate nurses, who had been trained in small institutions by superintendents who were themselves

Massachusetts General Hospital graduates, were given the privilege of several months' experience in the wards, and all proved by their efficient work here how well they had been trained. The number of pupils from the Children's Hospital who came for the four months' training in adult nursing was ten.

We were asked to suggest graduates for 30 institution and district nursing positions.

Since the early summer a larger number of nurses has been available than ever before, and this has resulted in better nursing for the patients in the wards, and less arduous work both for the head nurses and pupils.

While there have been several instances of severe illness in the school, the health of the nurses on the whole has been good. One member of the class of 1907 has been obliged to withdraw because of illness; 2 have had typhoid fever, and are now at their homes convalescing. One of the class of 1908 also has withdrawn because of illness, and another has indefinite leave of absence because of severe illness in her family.

The ladies of the Advisory Committee and others have given the nurses many evenings of pleasure throughout the year. Besides the entertainments at the Thayer, tickets for plays, concerts, and readings in generous numbers have most kindly been sent to us.

The present Training School Staff is as follows:

Superintendent	1
Assistant Superintendents	2
Night Superintendent	1	128
Graduate Head Nurses	19	24
Postgraduate	1
Pupils, Class of 1907	26	104
Pupils, Class of 1908	28

Pupils, Class of 1909	28
McLean Hospital Graduates	12
Pupils in Preparatory Course	7
Probationers	3
Total	128

Special Instruction:

Diet Kitchen	Miss Lydia D. Morse.
Massage and Hydrotherapy	Miss S. May Taylor.

Respectfully submitted,

PAULINE L. DOLLIVER,
Superintendent of Training School.

MEDICAL INSTRUCTION.

GIVEN BY GEORGE S. C. BADGER, M.D.

No changes have been made in the course as given last year. Owing to the larger classes presented for instruction, it has been impossible, with sections of fifteen nurses, to give to each one as frequent opportunities of examining patients as seems desirable. The method adopted is as follows: Two or three patients are given out for examination, two nurses to each patient. After a few minutes all the nurses gather about the bedside, and the two pupils tell what they have observed and what they think of the patient's condition. A quiz is held before the patient, if he is not too ill, and the treatment as actually being given is carefully considered. When the nature of the disease or the condition of the patient is such as to prevent the bedside quiz, the last fifteen minutes of the exercise are taken in the amphitheater. In other words, clinical medicine at the bedside is taught for one year, but without the use of auscultation, percussion, or any chemical examinations.

The outline of the two years' course is as follows:

First half of first year: Physiology, eleven lectures with demonstrations, quizzes, and examination. Hygiene, two lectures.

Second half of first year and first half of second year: Clinical Medicine, ward visits.

Last half of second year: Lectures on Therapeutics, The Exanthemata, Tuberculosis, Malaria, Meningitis, Syphilis.

The year of ward visits is by far the most interesting and profitable. In spite of the fact that the nurses are constantly with the patients, it is found that systematic instruction in the observation of patients and diseases, and the results of treatment is very much needed and appreciated. Much time is devoted to diseases of the circulatory, respiratory, and digestive organs, and to those of the kidneys, and to typhoid fever.

At the close of the second year an examination is given, covering the work of the last year and a half. The questions are given out three days in advance, and permission is given to consult any books, but not each other.

During the third year it is proposed to hold three conferences. At these exercises two or three nurses are to present brief papers, to be followed by a general discussion. These papers are to present subjects of general interest, and are to be the expression of the nurses' own experiences and observations in the medical and surgical wards, supplemented by any reading they may choose to do.

SURGICAL INSTRUCTION.

GIVEN BY THOMAS J. MANAHAN, M.D.

The course in surgical nursing covers two years. For the first year instruction is given in the following subjects :

Bandaging,
Biology,
Anatomy,
Surgical Anesthesia,
Surgical Bacteriology,
Surgical Pathology,
Sterilization.

The instruction is given by didactic lectures, followed by recitations.

The lectures on these subjects are necessarily very elementary. The courses are dealt with so as to bring before the nurse those points which have a practical bearing on surgical nursing.

BANDAGING.

The nurses are instructed in the manufacture, economy, and indications for bandages. The fundamental bandages are first taught, followed by detailed instruction upon the common bandages in use. By the use of artificial legs and patients taken from the ward, the nurses have an opportunity of applying the various bandages under the direction of the instructor.

The preparation of ordinary splints used in fracture work is demonstrated either by the instructor or one of the head nurses.

BIOLOGY.

Subjects embraced:

1. Vegetable life,
2. Animal life. } Relation to disease.
3. Normal development of the human embryo.
4. Elementary histology.
5. Definition of common, general, anatomical terms.

ANATOMY.

Skeleton. The instruction on the anatomy of the skeleton dealt with the general structure of the skeleton, the names of the common bones, with special reference to fractures, those bony prominences commonly associated with bed-sores, and the anatomical landmarks, which are used for the measurement of splints and apparatus.

Joints, Muscles, and Tendons. The relation of the structure of these parts to the theory of massage.

Heart, Vascular System, and Theory of Circulation. Special emphasis was placed upon the surface markings of the large blood vessels, in order that the nurses should be familiar with the points where pressure might be exerted in the control of hemorrhage.

Lungs, Abdominal Viscera, and Pelvis. Description of the viscera in general, with special instruction upon their surface markings, followed by demonstration at autopsy.

By means of lantern slides, the manikin, and dissection at autopsy, instruction upon the exact relations of the male and female pelvis was given.

In this way an effort was made to make the nurse thoroughly acquainted in the most practical way with the directions of the urethra and rectum, with special reference to the use of the catheter and rectal tube.

ANESTHESIA.

This instruction this year has been given by Dr. Allen, the Anesthetist to the Hospital. Under his personal direction, the nurses receive much more practical instruction than by the former method.

SURGICAL BACTERIOLOGY.

General considerations covering

1. Relation of bacteria to organic life.
2. Relation to infectious diseases.
3. Conditions favoring bacterial growth.
4. Conditions and agents used in inhibiting and preventing bacterial growth.
5. Means of identification, and methods of cultivation used in bacteriology.

Respiration.
The Urine.
Instruments and Utensils:
Uses, care, repair.
Pantry and ward supplies.

NURSING IN MEDICAL CASES.

Typhoid fever, diseases of the lungs, heart, kidneys.
Rheumatism.
Contagious diseases.

NURSING IN SURGICAL CASES.

Uses of disinfectants.
Sterilization.
Care of fractures, etc.

[The circular of information which is sent to applicants.]

THE MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

The Massachusetts General Hospital Training School for Nurses in Boston has made arrangements for giving a three years' course of training to women who desire to learn the art of nursing the sick.

Letters of application to the Superintendent of the Training School should contain a brief personal history, and should be accompanied by a statement from a physician testifying to sound health and unimpaired faculties. Applicants must be between twenty-one and thirty-five years of age, and of at least average height and weight.

A high-school education or its equivalent is required, and applicants should be prepared to show school diplomas or certificates as an aid in determining the amount of education they have received.

The Superintendent of the Training School and the Resident Physician of the Hospital decide as to the acceptability of candidates. The class is formed during the spring and summer months, but application should be made at least six months in advance. If approved, applicants are received for a period of two months' probation, and during this time they should be prepared for an examination in reading, English dictation, and simple arithmetic. The Superintendent of the Training School will decide as to their fitness for the work, and the propriety of retaining or dismissing them.

Those who prove satisfactory are accepted, and become pupils of the School on signing an agreement to remain thirty-four months, after the period of probation, and to obey faithfully the rules of the Hospital and of the School.

During the first twelve months the record of the pupil is carefully considered, and if found unsatisfactory or unpromising, the Superintendent of the Training School can drop the pupil from the School. She may, at any subsequent time, suspend, and with the approval of the Resident Physician and the Training School Committee, dismiss a pupil for misconduct, inefficiency, or neglect of duty.

Except under special circumstances, failure to pass the examinations will be sufficient cause for terminating a pupil's connection with the School.

Pupils reside in the Home, and act as assistants in the various departments of the Hospital. They are expected to perform any duty assigned them by the Superintendent of the Training School.

The hours of duty are from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M.

A vacation of three weeks is given each year.

In sickness, the pupils are cared for gratuitously, but all time so lost must be made up.

As the school is unsectarian, there are no religious services connected with it; but all pupils are expected to attend the places of worship they prefer once on Sunday.

An allowance of $6.00 per month, exclusive of the months of probation, is made to defray the necessary expenses of uniforms and text-books.

Pupils receive board, lodging, and a limited amount of laundry work.

Pupils should come prepared to pay at the close of the period of probation for their uniforms and text-books, the cost of which will not exceed $20.

A regular course of lectures, recitations, and demonstrations is given, with examinations at stated periods. Instruction is also given at the bedside of patients by the visiting and resident physicians and surgeons.

The course includes three months' special training in obstetrics, three months in private nursing at the Corey Hill Hospital, Brookline, and one month district nursing with the Instructive District Nursing Association.

For those who desire it a preparatory course of four months is offered at Simmons College devoted to the study of the following subjects :

Household Arts,
Chemistry,
Bacteriology.
Anatomy,
Physiology.

(Each student who takes this course will be required to pay in advance a tuition fee of $50.00, and to deposit $10.00 for breakage.)

When the full term of training is completed, after passing the examinations, the nurse receives the diploma of the School, and is at liberty to choose her own field of labor, either in hospital or district work, or in private families. As it is believed that an annual report of the addresses and positions of the graduates of the School will be for the advantage of the nurses as well as the School, the graduates are requested to send their addresses to the Superintendent of the Training School on or before December first of each year.

A graduate of this School who wishes to gain special proficiency in the care of nervous and mental cases has the privilege, under certain restrictions, of entering the McLean Hospital Training School for Nurses. Such graduates will, after one year's satisfactory study, receive the diploma from that School in addition to the one received from the Massachusetts General Hospital Training School for Nurses.

Personal application may be made to the Superintendent of the Training School, Wednesday mornings, between 10 and 12 o'clock.

Postgraduate Course.

A two months' Postgraduate Course is open to the graduates of this Training School. The course consists of two months' surgical work, or of two months' medical work, or of one month each of medical and surgical work, as the graduate prefers.

Students must provide themselves with the uniform of the School. They live outside the Hospital, pay no fee, and receive no pay for this course. Their hours of duty conform to those of the pupils of the School, and they act as assistants in the wards.

Those who wish to take this course should apply to the Superintendent of the Training School; and state definitely what experience they wish to have, and the time when they could most conveniently take the course.

During the summer months there would be more openings for graduates, but, so far as possible, appointments will be made to suit the convenience of the applicants.
